GIRLHOOD SAMPLERS AND PICTORIAL EMBROIDERIES SURVEY OF COLLECTIONS

The Sampler Consortium is working with the Sampler Archive Project in its efforts to create an online searchable database of information and images all known American samplers and related schoolgirl embroideries. Initial funding for this project was awarded to the University of Delaware by the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) in 2011. The university is currently working to obtain funding for Phase 2, which will enable the Sampler Archive Project to increase the number of records and images in its database from 300 to 3000. Toward that end, please provide us with information about your institution's collection of schoolgirl samplers and pictorial embroideries by answering the five questions listed below. You can then return the questionnaire by mailing it to the address at the top or sending it via email to: support@samplerconsortium.org.

Thank you in advance. We greatly appreciate your commitment to preserving these wonderful artifacts of girlhood education!
